Hidden Shoal Recordings » HC-B Album

Perth, Australia; Catania, Sicily, March 27th, 2009. The Australian music label Hidden Shoal Recordings today announced the official CD release of the album Soundcheck For A Missing Movie by Italian sonic cinematographers HC-B.

In each of its eight majestic songs, Soundcheck For A Missing Movie follows HC-B's finely trained lens across a breathtaking instrumental rock landscape, rich with detail and swimming with emotive currents. In triumphant single 'Hot Afternoon In The Bulls' Square', free-jazz horns squabble and blare like a swarm of bees before the main theme shines through like an exultant fanfare, supported by a thundering bassline. The gorgeous 'Slow Compensation' winds sinuous synth lines, violin and a longing male and female vocal through the swaying drums and guitars, mustering a quietly anthemic yet intimate epic. And closer 'Missing Movie' brings the house down with a storm of ferocious guitars.

"this is instrumental post-rock with attention-grabbing orchestral construction... HC-B really are something special" - Even In The Future Nothing Works

"This balance between the melodic, almost atmospheric symphonic, and the more noise-rock expression is some of what impresses me the most with this brilliant album.... Seductive, visual, noisy and mind-blowing." - Luna Kafe

Named after the great French photojournalist Henri Cartier-Bresson, Sicilian quintet HC-B are masters of a similarly evocative art. Their expansive sound, rich with detail, is a clear reflection of a band at the height of their creative powers. Effortlessly shifting focus and timbre with each movement of their epic song-suites, HC-B channel their formidable talents into some of the most thrilling, symphonic instrumental rock you will hear.

The band formed in 1999 and self-released two EPs, My Green Apple and to101222, which firmly established their distinctive balance between composition and improvisation across a broad instrumental palette. This was soon followed by the release of their debut album Sliding On Barents Sea on Edwood Records in 2003, which received glowing reviews in Italian magazines (Blow Up, Rumore, Mucchio Selvaggio) and webzines (Freak Out, Music Heart, Rockit). Since 2003 the band have played extensively around Italy, supporting the likes of Battles, dEUS and US Maple. The album was recorded and mixed by Sacha Tilotta and Alfredo Musumeci at Dream Factory in Catania, and mastered by Bob Weston (Shellac) in Chicago.

Soundcheck For A Missing Movie is now available in CD and digital formats from the Hidden Shoal Store and all good third-party digital music stores (iTunes, eMusic, Amazon etc). All CD distribution information is available from the Hidden Shoal website.
